

Bells like these told servants in the service wing that they were needed in the main house. A system of wires connected buttons around the hall to the bells in the service wing.

These bells were found in storage in 2023 and may be from the demolished service wing.